

Football Decision Draws Attention Across Cen-Tex

The Cameron School Board's 5-1 decision to abandon seventh and eighth grade football has drawn state-wide interest.

Stories in daily newspapers in Temple and Waco and an editorial in the Sunday Houston Post drew attention to Cameron's decision, one of the first in Texas to ban the contact sport on the junior high level.

A statement from Dr. Irby B. Carruth, superintendent of Austin schools, denied that Austin public schools abandoned junior high football.

The Houston Post quoted Dr. Carruth saying that "next year the eighth and ninth grade boys will each have a separate team and play a schedule of regular football. The seventh grade will play other teams in tag football."

Austin's school official made the decision following public hearing where groups discussed the feasibility of abandoning junior high contact sports because of high possibility of permanent injuries, one Cameron School board member told The Herald.

The Austin case came up during the discussion prior to Cameron School Board members' voting to abandon junior high football here.

Dr. Gus Evans, vice-president of the Cameron Board, said information first issued by a member of the Cameron board was incorrect concerning Austin's banning of junior high school football.

But Uvalde, a 3-A school in that Southwest Texas town of 9,000, had abandoned junior high football. Cameron officials pointed out. Uvalde will have intra-mural touch football and teach fundamentals.

Basis for the Cameron Board's decision was information from the Travis County Medical Association (used in Austin's hearings to consider the effects of junior high football), the Texas Society of Athletic Team Physicians and Texas State Medical Journal.

Dr. S. H. Richardson, a board member, said that evidence of a high incidence of permanent injuries to junior high griders had been published in national medical journals for the past two years.

In the board's statement last week, the Texas Society of Athletic Team Physicians' position was cited. "They (the Society) were particularly concerned about renal (kidney) injuries which they stated were 'fairly common and it has been of interest that most of these have been in the junior high school level.' They suggested that the youngsters instead undergo graduated and extensive training without contact. They suggested strength be built by means of calisthenics, weight lifting and wind sprints."

The Houston Post editorialized that junior high football could be abandoned as in Cameron's case and said that schools might ban junior high football based on the known record of permanent injuries. The editorial opined that reactions generally will be favorable to the idea.

Other elements of abandoning junior high football were discussed when the Cameron board voted to drop it. Dr. David Shapiro, board secretary, said the school could use the money from savings in equipment and a coach's bonus to put other places in the system. In an earlier meeting in May, the board discussed the merits of junior high athletics with head coach Bill Bates.

Bates stated he was in favor of continuing the program to as-

Buckholts To Vote On Tax Proposal

Buckholts School patrons will vote Saturday on whether or not to raise the maintenance tax from $1 to a $1.50 per $100 valuation.

Supt. James W. Perry said that voting will be held Saturday at the Homemaking Building of Buckholts Schools.

Perry told The Herald that a public meeting on the proposed increase in the school maintenance tax levy was held the evening of June 14, but that only a small group attended. Total tax levy now being paid, said Perry, is the $1 maintenance levy and a 50-cent bond retirement levy.

If approved, the additional 50 cents per $100 valuation would raise Buckholts tax levy to $2.

Supt. Perry said the additional 50 cents, to be used for operating expenses of the school, would bring in an additional $5,300 a year in district tax revenue. At present, he said, the rural high school district patrons are paying $10,000 in taxes. District valuations are figured at 10 per cent of actual valuation.

Perry said the Buckholts District is now operating on a budget of about $50,000. Bonded indebtedness is $66,000 which is being paid out on a 20-year bond retirement program.

Buckholts is serving about 165 students in a 12-grade system, Perry noted.

A good turnout would be about 150 votes, he estimated. The Buckholts District has 225 school patrons on the tax roles.

West Week Group Seeks Old Clothes

Just couldn't discard that leg-of-mutton sleeved dress, or those high-top, pointed-toe shoes? Well, shake out the moth balls because Cameron's Western Week has provided an opportunity for them to be seen and admired again.

Yes, a style show of pre-1920 era clothes will be a feature of Western Week this year and the Cameron Chamber of Commerce has issued an appeal for those fashions of yesteryear.

The style show committee feels sure that there is an ample supply of dresses, shoes, large flowery hat, and bathing suits, packed away in Cameron residents' trunks, for a never to be forgotten style show.

Mrs. Edwin Brod and Miss Mildred Thornton, style show committee members, are particularly interested in late eighteen hundred and early nineteen hundred apparel.

So now is the time to make a "trunk check" and call the Chamber of Commerce, OX 7-2541 if you have any appropriate clothing, or know where some might be found.

Roadwork Begins On New US 77 South Of Rockdale

Construction on the new US 77 south of US 79 in Rockdale to Lee County line began last week off of existing right-of-way, according to Carroll Zeigler, resident engineer, Hearne.

He said work began off of existing right-of-way in order to keep to a minimum traffic conflict on present roadway.

"Work and warning signs will be erected as they are needed to warn of road construction and road conditions," Zeigler said.

Clearance for the project was announced when Harry Newton, Inc., won the bid for the 9.2 mile project with a low bid of $982,982.

The project will take about 18 months to complete, Zeigler said. The contractor has been allowed 275 working days to complete the project.

Zeigler asked the co-operation of property owners in keeping livestock out of the area since cross fences are being removed.

Group To Meet

A letter has been sent to 30 Cameron civic leaders and property owners, inviting them to serve as a Citizens Advisory Committee to study classroom needs at O. J. Thomas School. The group is scheduled to meet at 3 p. m. Saturday in the Superintendent's Office at Ben Milam School.

Council Approves SWB Franchise

In a short, regular meeting Tuesday, City Councilmen approved a second reading of an ordinance extending Southwestern Bell's service renewal with the city and called for additional bids on a new fire truck chassis.

In routine business, the Council approved the renewal of a 20-year agreement with SWB Co. Manager C. L. Carson represented the telephone company.

And the Council heard a report on E. 11th St. paving. Officials reported that mechanics liens had been completed on two pieces of property and a third was in the process.

Mayor Coleman Duncum said that curb and gutter on the remaining open frontage would be completed and paving begun.

Mayor Duncum also recommended that additional bids be called for the city's fire truck chassis. Two bidders, Woodum Auto Sales and Schiller Motors, submitted bids Tuesday. Consideration was delayed.

Council approval was given a request by Sam Tindall, of 1006 W. 16th St., who wishes to pay for paving 16th St. from the Southern Pacific tracks to Austin Avenue. Duncum said Tindall had agreed to pay a Temple contractor directly for paving materials if approval of the city was granted. The street is a gravel road in the west side of Cameron.

Mayor Duncum also said he was checking with Jack Prescott on completion of recoding city ordinances, and modernization of Cameron's city laws, last completed in the 1920's.

at O. J. Thomas School. The group is scheduled to meet at 3 p. m. Saturday in the Superintendent's Office at Ben Milam School.

Cameron School Board members appointed the 30-man panel and authorized Board President Milton Schiller to invite them to the meeting.

This action followed disclosure at a recent school board meeting of the crowded classroom conditions at O. J. Thomas School.

OJT Principal Albert Whiteside told board members that as many as 40 students were in OJT classrooms at one time last year. The maximum number of students per classroom to 35, officials said.

The board discussed calling for estimates on improving the old barracks building for additional OJT classrooms. The barracks were once used as classrooms for the GI Institute training following World War II and the Korean War.

OJT students are taking courses in the school gymnasium, the library and lunchroom of the present school, built about six years ago.

School officials have been working on a schedule for payment of a transfer fee for students attending Cameron schools from outside the Cameron district.

Whiteside at the last meeting, noted that O. J. Thomas has 72 Negro transfer students from Rogers, Branchville - Maysfield, Buckholts, Milano and Burlington. Texas Education Agency officials recommend a classroom total of 26 for good teaching conditions, officials said and set a maximum of about 35.

CYO To Sponsor Record Hop Thursday

The Cameron CYO will hold a Record Hop this Thursday according to James Anderle, President. The dance will start at 8 p. m. at the Simon - George Hall. The public is invited and admission is 25 cents.

State Rep. C. W. Pearcy, of Bell County, Wednesday said that Milam, Robertson and Burleson Counties have been incorporated into a new representative district.

Formerly only Milam and Robertson Counties, this area's Representative's District added Burleson County after the 1960 population figures were announced.

Speaking before the Cameron Rotary Club, Pearcy, chairman of the House redistricting committee, said the redistricting bill appeared to be headed for trouble in the spring legislative session, but a substitute bill failed to gain support and Pearcy's House Bill carried.

The Texas Constitution requires a redistricting of legislative areas following every decennial census, Pearcy pointed out.

The average legislative district in Central Texas is 51,000 people. Pearcy noted the population gain and resulting legislative influence gains of the metropolitan areas. He noted that four cities - Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio - now have 35 of the 150 House seats. And smaller cities of Amarillo, Lubbock, Corpus Christi and El Paso form additional influence for the metropolitan bloc of the House.

"In some cases, we unavoidably pitched incumbent representatives against another incumbent in redistricting, but we spent three months hearing the preferences of every legislator to keep conflicts to a minimum," Pearcy noted.

He said the group that came up with a substitute bill had taken his committee's bill, and used it to gerrymander areas in the state to gain support. It failed to gain support.

No legislative district is less than 40,000 constituents, he said.

The Senate District of Bell, Milam and McLennan Counties was unchanged following the census, he noted.

"In 1951, four fist fights broke out on the floor of the Legislature when the redistricting bill came up for a vote. We didn't have any this year," he said, "except downtown when two of the representatives got together. It is always a touchy bill."

He was introduced by Milton Schiller, program chairman.

Three New Homes To Be Constructed; Projects Continue

Construction news showed announcement of three new houses to be built on E. Eighth and E. Ninth Sts. and continued work on two major sites.

Rube Johnson, of Cameron, has announced he will build three homes on lots in the 700 block of E. Eighth and E. Ninth St. They will be 1400 - 1500 square feet homes of brick construction, he told The Herald.

Meanwhile, workmen were rapidly completing sidewalks and landscaping at First Baptist Church for a July formal opening.

And workmen were installing interior equipment at Newton Memorial Hospital due for completion about August, officials said.

Workmen also were constructing an additional paneled office onto the rear of the E. B. Camp offices on E. Second Street.

And improvements continued on the interior of McLane Company, Wholesale Grocers, and Duke & Ayres Variety Store where new fixtures are being built and installed.

Freeman Terms Proposal 'Magna Charta'

House bill in Washington, Poages chairman of the U. S. House agricultural committee.

Citing the 10-year drop of 26 per cent in agriculture income per family, Freeman said the bill will establish procedures with which "the nation can meet the challenge" of feeding the people at home and abroad.

The Secretary arrived in Rosebud amid a light shower that grew heavier as introductions and presentations were made before he spoke.

Rosebud held a parade at 1 p. m., prior to the Minnesota's arrival. He was accompanied by a group of reporters and Temple civic leaders. He spoke on the farm bill before a Temple group at noon and went on to a Democratic dinner in Waco Saturday evening.

Opening with a statement on the need for explaining the economic status of the farmer, Freeman said the farmer "hasn't benefited from the agriculture success. The more efficient the farmer," he said, "the less his profit. Throughout the county," he said, "it is a picture of falling prices and progressing farm distress."

"Agriculture is the No. 1 U. S. success story," Freeman said, "with 9 per cent of the population in the nation."

"This proposed legislation would provide farmers with the machinery for coming together to develop supply adjustment programs, commodity by commodity."

He went on: "We have had a farm program for everyone but the farmer," urging farmers to support the farm bill and saying the next two weeks may be the most important in American Agriculture history.

Freeman was making his first swing into the Southwest. He is carrying his appeal for support of the proposed Agriculture Bill across the country.

He said benefits of the farmer's efficiency have been passed on to the consumer, the processor and the seller, but the family farm unit as an "economic reality," may be destroyed.

After warming to his subject, Freeman described how the Agriculture Bill, now in House Committee, could be used commodity by commodity through these proposed points:

—Farmer - elected committees to consult with the Secretary of individual commodity programs which would go to the President and Congress.

—Consumer representative participation with review by Congress and approval of at least two-thirds of the producers.

—Establishment of procedures, not programs, affording "an open invitation to hard work for all those concerned with the farming economy."

Freeman described charges that the proposed legislation would increase the Secretary of Agriculture's powers, saying the Bill "would diminish rather than expand" the Secretary's authority.

Freeman also said charges of "invading Congress prerogative of financial control is a misnomer," adding it is "not a program to concentrate power."

Freeman cited the entering of 26.7 million acres of grain acreage in the 1961 Feed Grain pro-

John Ruskin, a 19th Century philosopher, had a sense of values that is oft quoted. Below is a phrase, probably most familiar to the business world, but having meaning for all:

"It is unwise to pay too much, but it's worse to pay too little. When you pay too much you lose a little money - that is all. When you pay too little, you sometimes lose everything, because it was incapable of doing the thing it was bought to do. The common law of business balance prohibits paying a little and getting a lot - it can't be done."

Life - giving rains finally fell in the Cameron and general Milam vicinity late last week, totaling, we believe, about 4 inches. Crops, lawns and all kinds of flora, stunted for lack of water during April and May, are coming quickly back to life. And those who depend on the soil (we all do in the final analysis) can take prospects for the year 1961.

WEATHER NOTES

A weekend of steady rains pushed total precipitation for the past seven days to 3.55 inches and ended a three-month drought in the Cameron - Milam area. Temperatures ranged in the mild 80's and cool 60's as rains fell.

Report From The Confederacy

General At Manassas; Confederate Supplies Low

By ROBERT STONEDALE
RICHMOND, Virginia, June 18, 1861. Confederate military efforts in Virginia are being concentrated to oppose the enormous Union armies threatening the northern border. Last week's repulse of Union forces on the Peninsula at the battle of Big Bethel Church, and the immobility of the Federal command in Northwestern Virginia after its success at Philippi, have permitted the War Department to give the Manassas Junction district its primary attention.

Brigadier-General Joseph E. Johnston, the highest ranking of ficer of the Old Army to take service with the Confederacy has been placed in command in the Valley district superseding Colonel Thomas J. Jackson.

John B. Magruder was promoted Brigadier-General yesterday in recognition of his successful defense of the Peninsula, and he remains in command of that district. General Magruder has been reinforced, and is strengthening the Yorktown line which defends the eastern approaches to Richmond.

Beauregard Assigned
The importance of the Federal threat to the Manassas district is emphasized by the assignment of General Pierre G. T. Beauregard, "Hero of Sumter", to command in that theatre. He has been ordered to maintain the closest vigilance over enemy movements, and to remain strictly on the defensive the War Department view being that aggressive action must not be undertaken until such time as the government's badly strained resources are adequate for defense.

On arriving in the Manassas district earlier this month, General Beauregard issued a formal proclamation to the people of the counties covered by his command. He has urged the citizens to awareness of the danger that surrounds them, and called for their cooperation.

"Rally to the standard of your state and country and by every means in your power compatible with honorable warfare drive back and expel the invaders from your land," the fiery communication exhorted. "All that is dear to man, your honor, and that of your wives and daughters, is involved in this momentous contest!" General Beauregard then asked that citizens report enemy movements to his headquarters.

"I desire to assure you that the utmost protection in my power will be extended to you all," the General concluded.

Guns Shield Norfolk
The heavy guns captured at Norfolk are being used in preparation of passive defenses requiring smaller infantry garrisons. Nineteen large guns have been placed in battery on the York river, and twenty more on the lower James. Batteries are also being constructed on the estuaries of the Potomac and the Rappahannock. At Norfolk, 85 heavy cannon are protecting the vitally important work taking place at the Navy yard.

As new regiments arrive at Richmond and are pronounced fit for duty, they are being distributed among the several frontier commands. General Beauregard's command now numbers about 15,000 men on the Manassas line. An additional 9,000 are serving under General Johnston who last week evacuated the indefensible position at Harpers Ferry and concentrated his forces a few miles south at Winchester. The rifle manufacturing machinery captured from the Federals at Harpers Ferry was dismantled and shipped to Richmond before the town was abandoned.

Sacrifices Are Required
Sober opinion here anticipates a long and costly war despite the recent small successes which, although they have attracted the public attention, should be considered minor clashes. Gentlemen who have some experience in the art and practice of war are making efforts to counteract the undue optimism which has attended some of the recent utterances in the press. Among these is Brigadier General Robert S. Garnett recently assigned to command the disorganized Confederate forces in Northwestern Virginia.

"This was may last years," General Garnett commented during a recent interview. "Our tactical position in Virginia is difficult, as it is on our other borders. Our foe is powerful, determined and backed by great industrial might. All these plans for an immediate capture of Washington and these ignorant predictions of a three month or six month war cannot but operate to our disadvantage," the highly regarded soldier continued.

"You gentlemen of the press can do us nothing but disservice if you make th task appear simple or easy. It will require sacrifices by every man in the South to bring this contest to victory."

BOYCE HOUSE

Early in the War with Mexico, the American troops, under General Zachary Taylor, were encamped along the Rio Grande and in Matamoros the soldiers were entertained by a theatrical troupe.

Among the performers was Joseph Jefferson, then a youth of 18, who was destined to become immortal for his "Rip Van Winkle."

The company - which included Jefferson's mother - was in Galveston when news came that Taylor's army was advancing on the Rio Grande and the manager defolow the army. The trip was made by steamer from Galveston to Point Isabel (now Port Isabel) which Jefferson described in his "Autobiography" as flat and sandy "covered with tents and boiling over with military preparations." The actors could hear the booming of the cannon as the Battle of Palo Alto was fought and, the next morning, Jefferson saw an ambulance arrive with the wounded Major Samuel Ringgold, who died soon afterward.

After the Battle of Resaca de la Palam, Matamoros was occupied and then the troupe established itself there and "acted to the most motley group that ever filled a theatre."

A vivid picture of the city was given by Jefferson: "The dwelling houses in Matamoros were generally one story high, built of brick plastered and painted yellow, one door and an iron - barred window in front on the street and the same at the back, leading to a courtyard which was used in common by the occupants of the house for washing, ironing, cooking and eating. We occupied one of these establishments.

"In the morning, little tables, with white cloths, were brought out and set for breakfast in the open air. The different families would sit at them and drink their hot coffee, eat their fruit and bread, smoke their cigarettes, and talk away as gaily as if no war were going.

The courtyards were entered by a large gate, and hired out to passing caravans of muleteers or rancheros, who occupied the middle of the space. Here they also took their meals and sold their fruit, vegetables, chickens and dry goods of cheap and gaudy - colored stuffs, Mexican blankets, sombreros and baskets.

"The courtyard at night was a lovely sight. The little houses surrounding it were all lighted up within, the doors wide open so that we could see the families, men, women and children, knitting, smoking, dancing, singing and playing cards - (always So Mexico); and groups of muleteers in the center were seated around

When the army advanced into Mexico, Matamoros was silent and deserted, so the manager of the theatrical company departed with all the funds, including the back salaries of the actors. So ends this story of the drama beside the Rio Grande.

See Texas As A Tourist Does

AUSTIN — Why not see Texas this year from a tourist's point of view?

That is the vacation suggestion offered to Texas residents by the State's official tourist agency, the Texas Highway Department.

"Many Texans have never seen their own State through a tourist's eyes," explained State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer. "Some Texas residents plan out-of-state vacations because they are unaware of the wonderful variety of scenery, recreation and historical attractions in Texas."

For more relaxation and enjoyment, plan your vacation early.

For help in planning it, write to Texas Highway Department, P. O. Box 5064, Austin, 31, Texas.

The Highway Department maintains a complete file of descriptive and informative literature on points of interest and special events throughout the State. This material, including Highway Department publications such as the 1961 Official Highway Travel Map, is available free of charge to prospective Texas vacationers.

Vacation outings ranging from full-fledged trips of a week or more down to shorter drives on holidays or weekends can be planned with the help of these free informative pieces. Vacationers writing for information should specify the area of the State they wish visit and indicate their preference of things to see and do.

Once the vacationer is on his way, more than 600,000 miles of smooth Texas highways make a quick and easily accessible points of historical, scenic and recreational interest.

"Yet Texas tourist attractions often pass unnoticed by many Texans living only a few miles away," he said. "It is like the famous 'acres of diamonds' story in which a man traveled all over the world seeking wealth, only to discover that he could have found it in his own backyard."

"Texans who know their State are aware that the Lone Star State has an unequalled variety of scenery, climate and tourists attraction within a few hours' drive. It is unfortunate that we have no funds to make these attractions known to residents of other States through tourist advertising."

Texas has one National Park (Big Bend), four National Forests, more than 600 miles of coastline, more than 50 mountains over 6,000 feet high and numerous scenic underground caverns, Greer said, as well as many man-made lakes, old cattle trails restored forts, monuments and museums. More than 50 State Parks are available for outdoor recreation including water sports and camping.

The Texas Highway Department maintains some 1,000 Roadside Parks offering travelers a chance to rest or picnic.

"Plan your vacation with the aid of the free travel information available through the Highway Department," Greer urged, "then drive on a Texas highway to see Texas from a tourist's-eye view."

Fourth-of-July Traffic Warning

Governor Price Daniel said today that "every Texas driver owes it to himself, his family, his passengers and his State to make certain that he is not involved in a traffic crash at any time, but more especially during the traffic-crowded Fourth of July period."

The Texas Department of Public Safety said the official "Operation Deathwatch," during which all victims of violent or accidental death will be counted, will be observed from 12:01 a. m. to 11:59 p. m. Tuesday, July 4, making it a one day holiday.

"But I feel fairly certain," the Governor added, "that Texas highways will carry an unusual amount of traffic also on July 1, 2 and 3, immediately preceding the national Independence Day observance. So again we appeal to all drivers to exercise unusual caution and to drive carefully and legally."

The Governor said the average daily traffic toll in Texas was nearly seven a day in 1959 and just over six a day in 1960. In the light of records for the one-day Fourth of July holiday in 1956, when 12 were killed and in 1957 when 15 were traffic victims, Gov. Daniel added "it is quite possible that the normal average could be doubled on the Fourth, and this we want to prevent."

The Gov. has asked all State and local law enforcement officials to "maintain steady pressure particularly on persons involved in speed too great for conditions and driving while drinking, and against all drivers who either cannot or will not drive safely and legally."

In 1956 when the DPS predicted 11 traffic deaths, 12 persons died. In 1957, with a prediction of 10 deaths totaled 15. In the past nine years, Fourth of July Traffic deaths have been fewer than predicted only three times. Two of those better years, 1958 and 1960, followed strenuous Statewide campaigns staged under the Governor's sponsorship, in cooperation with State and local law enforcement agencies and civic groups.

CAMERON HERALD

— WITH ROBERT MANN —

Last week the Cameron Public School Board abolished football on the 7th and 8th grade level because of costs of equipment, coaches, and the danger of some permanent injury to a participant.

The decision was made while head coach, Billy Bates, was attending a coach's clinic in Florida. His only public comment on receiving the news was, "I am bitterly disappointed."

I can clearly see the reason why he is disappointed and earnestly believe he is justified. A young, energetic, strategist, Bates has the potential of reaching the top in his field.

Until now he has received complete cooperation on his athletic program. Yet at no time has Bates de-emphasized scholastics. His reputation among the boys of the school is that grade-wise he will flunk his A team quarterback as soon as he will the non-athlete. Not only are Cameron proud to have a man like Bates in their school organization, they are fortunate.

The reasons for abolishing the contact sport was the fear of possible injury to a student and statistics bear this decision out as a sound one.

One board member's main concern was taking the responsibility of a possible injury after knowing these facts. The responsibility does not rest that heavily on the school board.

True, the board is the school's policy maker, but there is not a father or mother that doesn't realize their son is risking injury when he walks on a football field. Most fathers I have talked with prefer their sons to take that risk. As one put it, "I want my son to be a man, not a boy that is afraid to be knocked around every once in a while."

Since the main problem is that of injury then let's look at it. Cameron hasn't, as far as I know, had a Junior High player seriously injured and what few scars they do have are exhibited with pride.

Ask yourself this question. Which boy is going to get hurt first, the one who goes into high school with two years of football playing behind him and knows how to defend himself against trick tackles and blocks through experience as a 13 or 14 year old. Or the boy who has never had any contact sports at all and will be competing with boys bigger, older and with four or five years more experience.

As far as the future stability of football teams goes, the answer is clear. Learning the sport has simply been set back two years. If this is what the people of Cameron want, well and good, but if it's not what they want, as some have expressed, a wrong decision has been reached.

Three Way Tie In Mixed Bowling

A three way tie for first place highlighted the Cameron Mixers League this week. Tied for the top spot are the Panthers, Tigers and the Hyenas with a 16-8 record.

The Tyenas also took the top team series with a 19-02 pinfall and the top single team game with 684.

In the individual action the top average man, Bunk Morris (175) had the top game with a 213 and Michaika had a 462 to lead tie women in the three game series. Emalou Curtis hit a 189 game to capture the women's top game honor.

Agnes Barton has the top average for the women with a 145.

sure that Cameron football players would be adequately trained to meet the competition of other schools having junior high programs. At present the other conference schools have junior high grid programs. Bates was at a coaching clinic in Florida when the Board voted the move June 8.

The Cameron junior high athletic program will include weight lifting, calisthenics, basketball, volleyball, track and a physical fitness program, officials said.

Hustlers Take White Sox, 2-0

The Hustlers edged the White Sox, 2-0 in the only Little League game played in a drizzling rain at Cameron Field last Thursday afternoon.

Butch Bryan got credit as the winning hurler for his two-hit performance, allowing one walk and fanning eight. His catcher was Bobby Bollinger.

The Hustlers scored their two runs in the fifth and third innings of play. Bobby Bollinger and David Bowen scored the runs. The Hustlers tallied a total of two hits on behalf of Butch Bryan and Ricky Hairston.

This losing hurler was Timmy Tucker. His receiver was Donnie Tucker.

Berlin Key To 'Get-Tough' Era

Mr. Khrushchev's get-tough policy over West Berlin brings clearer understanding to the mounting and over-due resistance to World Communism in Washington.

It is natural that Mr. Kennedy wished to meet the Soviet Premier in person before acknowledging the absolute necessity of blunter U. S. foreign policy. The experiences of Eisenhower's Administration, and that of Truman's for that matter, held true in Vienna. Khrushchev held the Communist line, made no concessions and spoke the same diplomatic language of President Kennedy but with opposite meaning.

The U. S. is therefore about to renew nuclear testing after the continuing Geneva stalemate; Laos is awash in a Red sea of militancy; Berlin is assured of a crisis in the late months of 1961.

Back on the Washington scene, the U. S. Supreme Court, by a 5-4 decision, is requiring the U. S. Communist Party to produce a list of its members; and the Court by the same 5-4 margin terms illegal any political party advocating (by proof) the overthrow of the U. S. Government and any party receiving assistance and direction from a foreign power.

These decisions came after 10 years of testing in courts up to the Supreme Court level. The Court's inclination to identify U. S. Communism for what it is becomes a hallmark in efforts to stem Communism's operations.

Dr. Castro has taught this country numerous lessons on power politics. More and more the cry for expression of U. S. power abroad is heard. The lethargic giant of public opinion is being heard in Washington . . . finally. Perhaps Castro is the imminent threat needed to arouse us to the dire circumstances of world politics.

Khrushchev's personal appearance on Soviet television last week pointed up the drama due for West Berlin later this year. Going directly to the Russian people (and Europeans who saw the telecast), he promised action in eliminating Western influence in Berlin. He called for a "free city". Experts believe he will clear up pressing domestic issues this summer and shoot for a blockade of West Berlin by winter.

President Kennedy drew assurance from De Gaulle of France's interest in holding at Berlin. Presumably, Macmillan agreed on behalf of Britain, which, incidentally, favors UN recognition of Red China.

With resumption of nuclear testing and commitment to Berlin's defense the U. S. would flex what must be considered military muscles. And hemispheric and domestic policy seems to be producing a hardening of the arteries for the Communists, even considering that tractor-for-rebels negotiations continue.

Texas' Tax Debate Still On

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — Texas' tax debate continues! Not as lively now as during the legislative session but many voices are being heard.

It's sort of a "speak" now or forever hold your peace" period. Some type of tax bill, undoubtedly the biggest in Texas history, will have to be passed in July or August, and those with something to say are rushing to get in their licks.

Legislators report that the small scale "great debate" is proving very helpful in stirring up opinions from previously silent constituents. They're hoping to discover enough home district reaction to guide them to a swift, sure solution when they return for the special session July 10.

Eight Central Texas Lawmakers, in a reply to Gov. Price Daniel's report to the people, say that raising $341,000,000 in new revenue will require a "broad coverage tax."

Although five of the eight voted with the governor during the session, several objected to a "hit and miss" tax approach.

Some say that people in their districts object to selective taxes on grounds that "it's not fair to tax my product and not my neighbor's."

In The Wind

A number of new approaches to tax plans already battled around during the regular session are being worked on by lawmakers during this interim. Among plans being considered are these:

1. By Rep. Charles N. Wilson of Trinity (sponsor of the 2 per cent sales tax passed by the House last session) — a new sales tax that would be linked, Siamese - twin fashion, with a corporation income tax.

2. By Rep. George T. Hinson of Mincola (a frequent sponsor of legislation favored by the govern-nor) — a 2 per cent tax on everything selling for 5.00 or more, with the usual food and drug exemptions.

3. By Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas — selective excise taxes of 2 per cent on a long list of items, but generally exempting the bed rock necessities of life.

New Committee At Work
Governor Daniel's new tax study committee, made up mostly of the board chairmen for various state agencies, got off to a diplomatic, soft - voiced start.

Several lawmakers took a dim view of having "another study group", recalling that the last one had come up with a payroll tax plan that never caught fire. Texas voters, they pointed out, selected their legislators to write the tax laws and will hold the legislators responsible for the outcome.

Members of the committee made it clear that they don't intend to dictate to the Legislature. But they do hope to be able to indicate some possible paths of compromise among the various plans to which the legislators have shown favor.

Committee is to meet July 6 to write its report for the special session.

Down The Drain?

Some legislators are fretting over the loss in state revenue resulting from the legislature's failure to pass a tax plan during the regular session.

Here is the way they see it:

1. Bills passed by a simple majority vote take effect 90 days after the close of the session. If a tax bill had been passed in the regular session, it would have taken effect the last of August and money from it would be accruing September 1 when the new fiscal year begins.

Violent Crimes Rate High Here

All of those who are familiarly refusing to give testimony just because he doesn't agree with the law.

Too often it seems that the local courts feel that the excuse for their existence is to protect criminals from punishment. I think that this is unfair to our law-abiding citizens, who make up the great majority of any community. I think that the certainty of punishment (not excessive punishment in a few cases) is the best deterrent to crime.

We need to give those accused of crime every presumption of innocence, but we should not deny the State the right to prove the guilt of a lawbreaker.

Seven years ago a chronic criminal named Mallory was accused of rape in Washington. He was arrested late on night and put in jail, where he stayed till business hours the next day. He signed a confession and made no claim that he was mistreated or roughly handled in any day.

The Supreme Court of the United States held that this delay of 7 hours in arraignment him after his arrest rendered the confession inadmissible. This is what came to be known as the Mallory decision. Mallory was turned loose to commit new crimes. He is now lodged in jail in Pennsylvania.

This week the House passed a bill to set this court decision aside insofar as we can do so. (Congress, of course, cannot and should not remove any Constitutional guarantees). We provided that an otherwise voluntary confession shall not be inadmissible solely because of delay in arraignment. I voted for the bill.

There has been a vast amount of misrepresentation regarding this bill. By no stretch of the imagination does it undertake to permit the use of confessions which are obtained through threats, coercion or duress.

I feel that this whole matter clearly slows up the trend of too many people to protect wrongdoers. I think it is closely related to the protection which our Supreme Court has given to those who refuse to testify and those who refuse to take an oath of allegiance to our country even when they are asking for help from the country. I think that the Constitution only intended to protect a citizen's right to refuse to give evidence against himself. I don't believe that anyone has the right to refuse to cooperate with the enforcement of the law.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Matocha and children of Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Buster and daughter spent the weekend visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Michalka.

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER

Philosopher Throws Cold Water On Attempt To Conquer Moon In Order To Conquer Earth

Dear editor:

In this day and age, nobody wants to be called scientifically backwards, although I've been called backwards in a lot of other fields and it hasn't bothered me, at least not to the extent of doing anything about it, but a neighbor of mine said he read a letter of mine in The Cameron Herald a while back and got the idea I was opposed to exploring space, like sending a man to the moon.

He got it wrong. I'm not opposed to exploring space, so long as somebody else besides me is in the rocket, but I would like to point out that my guess that man may not find as much out in space as he thinks has now been agreed to by at least some scientists.

In a poll of space scientists the other day, it was found some scientists say it is essential that we get a man on the moon and some say they doubt it would be worth the cost.

Here's the thing. The scientists for putting a man on the moon say it's necessary, because if Russia gets complete control of the moon she can have a better chance at controlling the earth.

I got to thinking about this, and it suddenly dawned on me that if you can control the earth from the moon, why can't you control the moon from Mars or Venus or some other planet

You mean to say that in order to control the earth, we've got to control the moon and in order to control the moon, we've got to control the next planet beyond that, and then the next after that, and so on and on out into the limitless areas of unexplored space?

This not only stretches the imagination, but it stretched and broke the national budget several planets back. This sure is going to get peace on earth. It's like me saying I'll have to conquer all the land in North America before I can control this Johnson grass farm whereas you and I both know what's standing in the way of improving this farm ain't the rest of North America, it's mostly me. Conquering the moon and all the other planets in the universe in order to conquer the earth reminds me of a quotation: "The fault, dear Brutus, lies not in our stars but in ourselves." This is from Shakespeare, which I read on the back of a calendar in 1931.

Yours Faithfully,

Farm, Factory Relationship Seen

While Temple, Waco and neighboring Rosebud were hosting Agriculture Secretary Freeman Saturday, a survey of importance to Central Texas was released by Business Week Magazine.

How are the incidents related?

Secretary Freeman was in Texas to explain the need for vitalization of U. S. agriculture, highly important to Central Texas and its communities, particularly those of the size of Rosebud, Cameron, etc.

Meanwhile Business Week's survey showed Texas' gaining position second only to California in preference for industrial location. California was mentioned for sites 104 times and Texas 61 times, primarily in Dallas (17) and Houston (21).

The geographical location of Central Texas explains the relationship of the events. And the interdependence of industry and agriculture for future development of small cities goes unchallenged.

Secretary Freeman was in Texas to endorse the Administration's proposed Omnibus Agriculture Bill which would allow wide federal support of agriculture in adapting to changing markets, domestic and foreign. The resolution was signed by Texas Farmers' Union and eight commodity groups, hoping to see improvement in the farmer's earning dil-

Library Project Worthwhile

The Library Planning Board has outlined a king-size plan for a new Cameron Library, presenting a projected program for a $50,000 facility.

The site has already been donated by the City of Cameron, on which a sign marks the project "as the future site of the Cameron Library."

Working toward successful construction of this program will take the co-operation of the whole city. It is a project worthy of all of Cameron's support.

Much groundwork must be done this summer before a contemplated drive is forthcoming in September.

But excellent planning up to present on general building recommendations has emna.

The implication of his visit was to assure Central Texas farmers of the value of the Bill and betterment of prospects for Texas' farmers, now 9 per cent of the population.

The obvious conclusion to be drawn from Business Week's survey is that industrial development is booming in North and South Texas metropolises and getting better. Projecting beyond these findings would show that Central Texas will naturally attract industry seeking to serve the growing North and South Texas markets. It is simple geography.

Improvement of the farmer's plight, an admirable and necessary program, most probably will precede the intense industrialization of Central Texas. But agriculture alone will not do the job.

Central Texas counties have lost tremendous segments of population in the past 10 years. Boosting the farmer is only the first step in redeveloping this area. Industry must come hand in hand to stabilize population if the cities are to provide the business centers for farmers to patronize.

One without the other leaves unmet the responsibilities to Central Texas residents, farmers and townspeople alike.

established a level on which continued preparation can be made.

Cameron's ambitions for a fine library building are in line with the growing emphasis on the academic requirements of schools and the adult community. Without much question, the value of a good library is limited only by the amount of patronage Cameron area residents give it.

Prospects for the library are good. Interest in the first Planning Board meeting exceeded expectations and interest is rekindling with the announced program of work.

The plan is certainly worthwhile and worthy of Cameron's fullest support.

W. W. MOLESWORTH

One-Man Expeditionary Force

"... no official report ..."

Ordinarily quiet and even-tempered, Ranger W. W. Molesworth, at Palefox on the Rio Grande, was considerably riled. It was during the border bandit troubles, about 10 years ago. Across the river at Hidalgo some young hehads were having fun with bank-to-bank pot shots. Finally, early on a Christmas morning, Molesworth got good and tired of it. Boasting over, he undertook a unique bit of unilateral action. He located the head man and suggested a border-style summit. Sometime later, and no agreement on river bank etiquette in sight, Molesworth's careful patience ran out. Locking the jefe in a cactaria, he proceeded to demonstrate excellent marksmanship with all the saloon signs and buzzards in sight as targets. Hidalgo was quiet as a well-fed kitten when Molesworth calmly boated home. Hidalgo stayed quiet, but Molesworth made no official report. He left it to legend that he is the only man, Texan or otherwise, to subdue a foreign city absolutely single handed.

While Texas lawmen were making this a better place to live, industry and commerce played their part. And one industry, brewing, has provided enjoyment as well as employment, the pleasures of moderate beverages as well as revenue for the community. In Texas, "Beer Belongs." Brewers, wholesalers, retailers and the United States Brewers Association are working constantly in cooperation with today's lawmen, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions.

Outdoors In Texas

By Vern Sanford

Whether you plan to keep your present fishing rig for 10 years or trade it off in a few months, you can maintain high trade-in value by keeping it in top shape.

Depreciation on an outboard rig is directly proportionate to the care given it. A well-cared-for rig even 10 years old will command a good trade-in value.

If you clean your rig after each outing there is little work to do. But if you put off the cleaning job until after a dozen or so fishing trips — man it becomes work and it can get costly.

Hull and motor cleaning is simple. You can do that with a garden hose.

Thoroughly wash out all grime and dirt, then dry with a chamois. Be sure to dry the hull well inside and out.

Don't let water stand inside the hull. Long standing water will lead to deterioration of a wood hull, corroding of a metal hull, and discoloration of a fiberglass hull.

Hull and motor washing is an absolute must when a rig is used in salt water. If you allow salt deposits to build up, you can run into some major expenses — particularly with your motor.

Boat Trailer Care Pays Don't forget the boat trailer. It's an important part of the rig. But it's often overlooked.

Every time you unload and load the boat, you back the trailer wheels into the water. Eventually, some of this water will seep into the grease seals.

If you have zerks fittings, a few squirts from the grease gun will force out any water that may have seeped through the seals. If you don't have zerks fittings, then remove the wheels and pack the bearings with grease.

Be sure to keep the boat winch and keel roller axles well greased. And remember that salt water is particularly hard on all metal parts.

When your trailer shows signs of wear, have it sand-blasted. Put on a protective coat of rust inhibitor before applying the finished coat of paint.

Check the wiring system that runs to the trailer lights. If worn and frayed, replace the entire system. Wiring should be of the waterproof type for at times it will be under water.

If you use the trailer on sandy beaches, periodically dismount the tires and check the casing walls for deposits of sand that could wear holes in the tubes and cause blowouts on the highway.

While the tires are off, check the rims for rust spots. Clean and repaint.

Windshields Need Attention Wrap - around plastic windshields are nice, but they can be the source of a lot of trouble if not properly cared for.

Franklin Moore At AIEE Summer Meet

ITHACA, N. Y. — Prizes for student technical papers in 14 of the 15 districts of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers were presented at the opening session of the five-day Summer General Meeting of the Institute at Cornell. The prize papers were adjudged the best in district contests held throughout this country.

Each author of a prize winning paper is rewarded with $25 from the Institute, plus an expense paid trip to the Summer General Meeting provided by the Institute's Member - For - Life Fund, plus a certificate.

The Southwest District winner and title of his paper was Franklin Moore of Cameron. He is a recent graduate of Texas A & M and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Moore. His paper was "Impedance Characteristics of Logarithmically Periodic Antennas".

Plastic windshields develop static charge and attract dust, with heavy deposits especially common after a trailer trip over the highways. Salt spray dries and leaves highly abrasive salt deposits, so keep it at least once a week in mind if you use your rig in the Gulf Coast area.

When cruising on a muddy river or lake, the silt-laden droplets can create pumice-like specks. Sand can get on the foredeck and gains of it will adhere to the windshield when wet.

Windshields do require special care. Here's how to do the job properly:

Rinse the windshield with plain water. Follow up with gentle washing with milk soap and a soft cloth. Never use household or auto glass cleaners because they can dull the finish of the plastic.

You can purchase special cleaners for plastic windshields, some of which contain agents to minimize formation of static charges or leave a protective film.

There is one thing you should never do in windshield cleaning. Don't try to wipe off dust with a dry rag. It will scratch and scar the plastic.

For extra protection for the windshield, you can install handles on the dashboard so passengers can hold on instead of grabbing the windshield when boarding. Undue strain on the windshield will cause it to crack.

Creak Steering System Your steering system should be cleaned and checked regularly.

One rope-and-pulley system, check the cables on the drum for slack, see that the hub nut is tight on the steering wheel and make sure that cable ends are secure and unfayed. Cables should be free from kinking and chafing and all pulley sheaves should rotate freely.

Check the cables for excessive slack or tightening while the motor is in various positions. Always use tiller cable rather than rope metal clothesline or other material.

Naturally, while you're hauling your rig, you'll have it lashed firmly to the trailer. But when you store the rig, loosen all lashings. Over a period of time they can shrink and cause permanent damage to the hull in the way of twisting or distortion. This can happen over night. The lashing can get set from dew or rain and sun.

In closing, let me point out this fact: You'll get a much better trade-in price for your old rig if you have given it the care and attention it deserves.

Web Worms In Trees Common

By J. D. Moore
Milam County Agent

Web worms in trees are quite common. These worms feed on the leaves of trees and are encased in a web for their protection from other insects such as wasps, etc. As the worms eat the leaves, a new web is formed as an addition to the old web and adjoining leaves on a limb are eaten.

As for actual damage to a tree, no appreciable amount is done. The web looks more de-

1961 Conference On Broilers Set

COLLEGE STATION — The 1961 Poultry Conference will be held June 28 - 29 at the Memorial Student Center on the campus of Texas A & M. In making the announcement, Ben Wodmeli, extension poultry husbandman, said the emphasis of this program will be on the breeding, health, feeding and management factors that provide for the maximum returns from egg and meat production.

This year's conference is designed to be of special interest to hatcherymen, breeders, hatchery and feed servicemen, related poultry industry personnel and commercial producers. Speakers will include Texas industry leaders and Texas A & M College personnel. In addition, Joe Claybaugh of DeKalb Agricultural Assoc., DeKalb, Ill. and Dr. Carl Hess, USDA-ARS Coordinator, Southern Regional Poultry Breeding Project, Athens, Ga., will address the conference.

Wodmeli says the attitudes and directions of the poultry industry are constantly changing, and the Poultry Conference will provide an opportunity to discuss the ideas that will contribute to a healthy Texas poultry industry. He says the speakers have all gained stature in the industry and will make a real contribution toward bringing about a better understanding of the new ideas and concepts.

structive and unsightly than does the worms. In fact, if it were not for the appearance of the web, the worms would go unnoticed in many cases.

The insect overwinters as a pupa in lightly woven cocoons in debris on the soil or under the bark. In the spring the adult (white moth which may have black or brown spots on the forewing) emerges and lay masses of greenish - white eggs on the leaves. The caterpillars which hatch from the eggs feed on the leaves in colonies under webs which they construct. After feeding for a month to 6 weeks, the larvae crawl down the tree and pupate in loose cocoons in debris, under bark, or in loose soil.

Adults appear during the summer and deposit eggs for the second generation. There are usually two generations of these worms in the south.

Control
Many people tie an oil soaked cloth on the end of a fishing pole set fire to the oil and burn the worms out. This practice is effective but does some damage to the tree. Others use long handle pruning shears to cut the limb off containing the web and burn the web and worms.

Best control is to spray the web with a DDT, Toxaphene or Malathion spray at the rate of one tablespoon per gallon of water. Some are of the opinion that this insect causes the large number of moths in the fall. The large number of moth appearing in the fall are caused by a second or third generation of army worms.

DAIRY PROBLEMS

A. M. Meekma, extension dairy specialist, says most dairy herds would produce enough additional income to pay the farm taxes if every cow produced a calf every year.

Breeding Trouble Costs Dairymen

COLLEGE STATION — Would you like to have a tax - free farm? Well, that's not quite possible, but if you're an average dairyman your herd could provide enough additional income to pay your property taxes. A. M. Meekma, extension dairy specialist, says this additional income can be provided if each cow produces a calf every year. Few herds reach this goal, however, and the resulting loss amounts to millions of dollars annually. Most dairymen are unaware of the loss because it represents milk that was never produced.

In order to freshen annually and thus start a new lactation, a cow must conceive within 90 days after her last calving. Meekma explains. Research shows the best time to breed cows is from 50 to 90 days - animals bred earlier often do not settle and may not finally conceive until well after 90 days. Loss of potential milk production may cost the owner over a dollar a day for each cow that goes more than three months without conceiving.

These losses are due to breeding problems, which include any condition that interrupts the normal breeding cycle. An average of one and one - half services per conception is normal, says the specialist. If your cows are requiring three or more services per conception, you've got trouble.

What do you do about breeding problems? Meekma offers several recommendations and says it will pay you to follow them. These are: Use artificial breeding; put your own bull "in the shelf" until he has passed several consecutive laboratory examinations. Have periodic pregnancy checks made on your herd; ask your veterinarian to examine any cows that do not show heat within 30 days after calving.

Dairy Cow Walks With Man In History Pages

COLLEGE STATION — The story of man is closely related to that of the dairy cow. A. M. Meekma, extension dairy specialist, said today in a June Dairy Month tribute to the nation's great dairy industry.

It's a story that goes back to the very beginning of civilization, as far as recorded history. There is evidence that the ancestors of modern man followed the ancestors of modern cows from pasture to pasture thousands of years ago.

According to Meekma, in the oldest writings known to man, the Vedic hymns written in Sanskrit on tablets of stone, the earliest known form of King was a Gopatis or Lord of the Cows. Gopatis owned the cows but milking was a sacred rite. One priest stood at the cow's head while another held her Tail. The third was of the highest ranking and did the milking.

Gopatis referred to the moon as the "milk goddess of the night." The stars were defined as 5-horned cattle. As Gopatis watched the cow - studded Heavens, another visible proof of the holiness of the Cow appeared. Across the sky there flowered a great river of soft whiteness which to this day is called the "Milky Way."

The Great Greek physician Hippocrates prescribed milk as a medicine 500 years before Christ was born.

Without the dairy cow, Meekma said, more than half of the colonists who first came to America's shores from England in the years 1607 - 1610 did not survive. They imported food but their supplies of butter and cheese were entirely inadequate. The first shipment of dairy cattle arrived at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1611.

Call your veterinarian for repeat breeders; he may suggest blood samples and tampon tests for his diagnosis. If abortions occur, ask your veterinarian about submitting aborted calves, blood samples and fetal membranes to the School of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A & M College, for diagnosis. Follow your county agent's advice for soil tests and fertilizer recommendations for forage. Lend your support to research on reproductive problems. Obtain a copy of D-317, "Breeding and Calving Record," from your county agent and put it to use.

The main thing to remember Meekma says is to use good cow sense. It pays big dividends.

Plentiful Foods Provide Delectable Eating For July

COLLEGE STATION — Food buyers who shop the Plentiful Foods Route have delectable July eating in store for them, reports the Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A & M College. The eight foods on the USDA's Plentiful Foods List are right in spirit with the month - July 4th, summer picnics and Midsummer Turkey Time.

Turkeys and fresh peaches are the featured items. They are supported by a refreshing array of summer vegetables, fresh plums, watermelons, cantaloupes, eggs and shrimp. All will be plentiful throughout July.

These items have been selected by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service because supplies at Texas markets are expected to exceed normal demands. The list provides a good shopping guide, consumers who buy and serve these items often stand to eat better and save more.

Turkeys of all sizes are plentiful. July marketing are expected to be 35 to 40 percent larger than a year ago. Storage stocks on May 1 were a record high. Liberal peach supplies from many southern States and California will hit markets in July. Southeastern growers expect the largest crop since 1947.

The shrimp industry faces large inventories and depressed prices as the new shrimp season opens. That's your cue to serve shrimp often. It will be readily available in fresh, frozen and canned forms in many markets.

Marketing Congress To Be Held In Dallas

Producers and other associated with the livestock industry of Milam and adjoining counties are invited to attend the national 1961 Livestock Marketing Congress to be staged at Sheraton - Dallas Hotel, Dallas, on June 21-24.

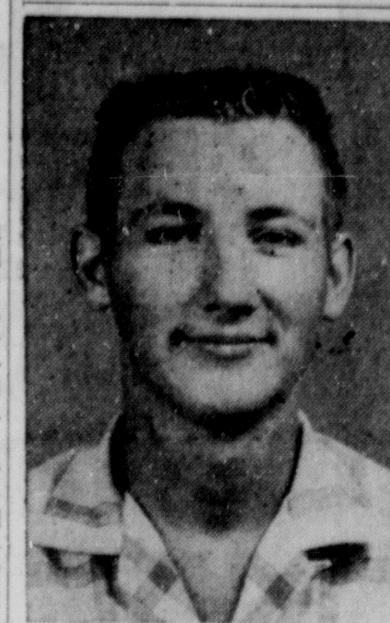

The public invitation was extended today by Lester Lawhorn of Cameron Livestock Auction, a member market of Texas Livestock Auction Assn., hosting the spectacular four - day event sponsored by the National Assn. of Livestock Auction Markets.

"Of special interest to our livestock industry friends in this area, Lawhorn said, "will be Livestock Industry Development Day" on Friday, June 23.

"Important phases of modern livestock production, marketing and processing will be emphasized during the Friday morning and afternoon programs highlighted with a big 'Livestock Industry Luncheon' at noon at the Sheraton - Dallas Hotel," he concluded.

PLENTIFUL FOODS

Turkeys and fresh peaches are the featured items on the USDA's July Plentiful Food List.
